ABSTRACT

[0020]   A method for accessing information in a private database is disclosed. The method includes, at an e-mail server, receiving a request from a wireless communication device to access the information in the private database, sending a query to retrieve the information, receiving a response to the query, where the response includes the information, and sending the information to the wireless communication device.